A LASTING TRIBUTE

Audrey Clark, widow of longtime ECCC baseball coach Jamie Clark, who died of cancer seven months ago, stands at a monument dedicated Monday in the coach's memory at the newly-named Jamie Clark Memorial Stadium.

Clark's memory lives in ECCC's 'Warriorville'

DECATUR — Monday afternoon was the rare kind of perfect mid-February day when a person could really enjoy being at an afternoon baseball game ... the kind of day that would always bring a huge grin to the late East Central Community College head baseball coach Jamie Clark's face.

It was the kind of blue-sky day where Clark could have looked down and been absolutely amazed at what was going on at the ECCC baseball field where he led the Warriors for 14 years before losing his battle with cancer last July.

ECCC honored Clark by naming its baseball facility Jamie Clark Memorial Stadium before a huge gathering of fellow faculty members, current and former players, opposing coaches, students and a whole lot of friends.

He always had a smile and a lot of jokes. He's missed and we would hope that a day like today will be a fitting commemoration for his time at EC.

many people and a lot of them are here today.

"One of the things he did when he recruited a player was he recruited a student and he wanted to be sure that they grew as men and got the most out of their education that they could get.

"Coach Clark's No. 41 will never be worn again by an East Central (baseball) player or coach, but will be permanently displayed in two prominent locations," ECCC head baseball coach Jake Yarbrough said.

A replica of Clark's No. 41 hangs on the fence in right field, while the gray jersey he wore when the Warriors won the 1998 MACJC state championship will be on display in the lobby of the Brackeen-Wood Physical Education Building.

"We felt like we wanted to honor Jamie the best way we knew how and we felt like the replica of his jersey would be something we would see each game and remember him," said Ricky Harrison, ECCC drafting and design technology instructor.

Several other improvements to the stadium will be made in Clark's memory.

top. One of the main things is that we're going to brick from dugout to dugout about 18 inches high. That was something that Jamie always wanted. We've already got the brick donated."

Clark's widow, Audrey Clark; daughter, Nicki; and stepson, Billy Turner; were on hand.

"Miss Audrey wanted to convey that the years Jamie spent here were not a job, but a way of life," said former ECCC instructor and personal friend of Clark, Larry Blackburn. "I believe everyone that knew Jamie would agree with that statement. It seemed if Jamie was not on this baseball field, he was at home reading about baseball or watching baseball on TV. He truly loved to talk about baseball."

"Today, I believe it is particularly fitting that Jamie be recognized for the positive influence he had on the young men that traveled through the East Central baseball program. By naming this facility Jamie Clark Memorial Stadium, all players and others will be reminded of the influence Jamie had on East Central Community College baseball."

Audrey Clark agreed that Jamie, who never liked to be in the spotlight, would be absolutely stunned at the honor and turnout.

"Very much so, but his feelings are shared by us. We don't like all this attention either, but he's looking down and he's very proud. Everything is in honor of him and very well deserving."

"Although Coach Clark is no longer with us, he will always be remembered in the place he called 'Warriorville,'" Yarborough said.

naming
Jamie Clark Memorial Stadium

Monday, February 18, 2002

East Central Community College
Decatur, Mississippi

Jamie Clark joined the East Central Community College coaching staff in 1987 after successfully leading baseball programs at Marvell, Arkansas; Humphreys Academy in Belzoni; Southland (Missouri) High School; and Lee Academy in Clarksdale. His Humphreys Academy teams captured three state runners-up titles and he led Southland to a third-place finish in the Missouri state championship.

At East Central, Clark inherited a baseball program that finished 3-29 in 1987 and 2-28 the previous year. Through Clark's leadership, however, it did not take long for the Diamond Warriors to become winners.

Following a 17-25 mark in 1988, East Central went 20-19 in 1989 - the first of 11 straight seasons with at least a break-even record. In 1995, the Diamond Warriors achieved their first 30-win season (against 19 defeats) and finished MACJC state runners-up to traditional powerhouse Gulf Coast. The 1996 team posted a 31-21 mark and began a string of five straight appearances in the Region 23 Tournament. The 1997 squad earned 40 wins, a record which still stands today. Then in 1998, Clark's Diamond Warriors achieved what many thought was an impossible task - a state championship! East Central rallied from a five-run deficit to defeat Gulf Coast for the title.

Overall, Clark's record at East Central was 365-302-1.

The 2001 campaign would be the last for Coach Clark, who was diagnosed with an inoperable brain tumor prior to the season getting underway. He still managed to attend most of the games throughout the season, although weakened by chemotherapy and radiation treatments. He was 49 when he died on July 18, 2001, at his home in Decatur.

Clark was a graduate of West Point High School and Delta State University, where he received bachelor's and master's degrees.

Among survivors are his wife, Audrey, who now resides in Austin, Texas, with their daughter, Nicki; three sons, Billy Turner of Slidell, Louisiana, Kevin Turner of Austin, Texas, and Daniel Turner of Cleveland; and three grandchildren.
